

Quantum Fields and Probability

Antti Kupiainen (Helsinki University)

I review some recent work where ideas and methods from Quantum Field Theory have proved useful in probability. The topics discussed include the use of Renormalization Group theory in Stochastic Partial Differential Equations driven by very rough noise and the use of Gaussian Free Field in the study of two dimensional random surfaces.